Financial Services Overview

PW&Co Market Review

While 2023 saw a slowdown in U.S. M&A activity across most financial services sectors, 2024 brought a return to dealmaking as new technology, changing regulations, and shifting customer demands served as a catalyst to drive business owners in the financial services arena back into the M&A market. Heading into 2025, U.S. dealmakers are optimistic about financial services M&A, building on the momentum created in the latter half of 2024. M&A deal volume in the financial services sector remained consistent with 2023 levels, following a 12% year-over-year decline in completed deals in 2023 and a 10% decline in 2022. Of the 1,930 transactions completed during 2024, private equity was responsible for approximately 43% of reported deals, the largest share of financial services transactions since the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic. Strategic corporate transactions accounted for approximately 57% of the reported deals in 2024. Deal value in the sector exceeded $205 billion during the year, a 37% increase compared to 2023 as megadeals such as Adams Street Partners' $12.5 billion acquisition of Worldpay were pushed to completion. In the middle-market, defined here as companies with an enterprise value between $10M and $250M, financial services valuation multiples reached a median of 2.7x revenue in 2024, a marginal increase of 0.2x compared to 2023.

In U.S. public markets, consumer finance companies experienced the largest gain during the year, with the S&P Composite 1500 Consumer Finance Index growing approximately 49% in 2024. Additionally, the Dow Jones U.S. Asset Managers Index (+35%), S&P 500 Insurance Index (+25%), and S&P Composite 1500 Investment Banking & Brokerage Index (+36%) all outpaced the S&P 500 Index (+23%) during 2024. The S&P Listed Private Equity Index had a positive 2024 (+20%), but failed to beat the broad market over the same period.

In the current deal environment, both institutional and corporate buyers are showing a strong appetite financial services companies, especially as the new U.S. administration is expected to support a roll back of financial regulations. Based on our conversations with various business owners and investors, corporate (strategic) buyers are being driven by the need to grow both the top and bottom line by accessing new markets and expanding service capabilities. Among private equity funds, we are seeing many firms building their own specialist financial services teams, indicating that PE firms are gearing up for an active 2025. If you are interested in selling your business, acquiring a company, or learning more about what your business is worth, please email Michael Stone or visit us online to learn more.
